What is BiblioLoop?

BiblioLoop is a hybrid online website and physical hub designed to make buying, selling, renting, and trading books affordable, safe, and easy for students. It handles both academic textbooks and leisure reading (novels, manga, and fiction).

WEBSITE

Metadata Indexing

Books are cataloged using standard library science methods (through ISBN, Author, Title, Genre, and Subject). This allows anyone across any university or town to find exact academic titles, course notes, board exam reviewers, or popular novels instantly.

Reservation

Users reserve items on the website, choose to pay online or in person, and get a secure QR code pass to drop off or collect their items at the physical hub.

WEBSITE

Dual Inventory Model

Virtual Peer-to-Peer (P2P). Users post listings and keep items safely at home until a buyer, renter, or trader confirms an order on the website.

In-Hub Display Inventory. The physical store stays stocked with store-owned rental textbooks, donated items, voluntary consignment items left by local sellers, secondhand finds, and trade-in stock.

Biblio-Credits System

Earn Through Trading. Users who hand over unwanted books, trade in old reference materials, or donate items receive Biblio-Credits added to their account balance.

Value. Credits act as store currency and can be spent anywhere across the system, whether to buy or rent other books, or to pay for hub services like printing, thesis binding, and book mending.

PHYSICAL HUB

Operating as a completely independent business, the hub is located in a high-density area near popular student districts or commercial centers for easy access to everyone without requiring university permissions.

Serves as a neutral, verified drop-off and pickup spot so buyers and sellers never have to arrange risky meetups with strangers or pay delivery fees.

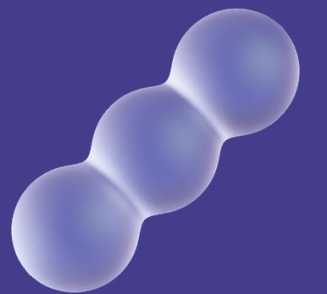

Offers document printing, thesis binding (hardcover, coil, thermal), and book repair services (mending torn covers, re-stitching pages, and applying protective covers).

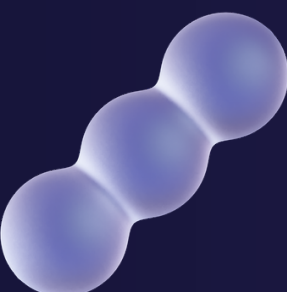

A cozy, quiet lounge space where visitors can study or read store copies of novels and reference materials with/without hourly pass fee (depending on the items).
